Helpful Resource for College Students and Young Adults with AD/HD By Camille Harris This book has been a very helpful for us as a resource for coaching college students and young adults with AD/HD and co-existing conditions. Ms. Fellman outlines a straightforward process for identifying interests, skills, and values and gives a wide range of career resources that the young person can explore with a coach/mentor/career counselor - or on their own. The stories of people with various types of disabilities are inspiring and refreshing, showing how anyone can find a career that works for them! 24 of 25 people found the following review helpful. No magic wands. This book tells it like it is. By A Customer You only have to open the first page of this book to learn that the process of finding a good career match is a very complex one. The author clearly states that right up front, and stresses throughout the user-friendly workbook, that we must gather TONS of facts before we can even begin to research jobs. Some people might be looking for a magic wand or an easy way to not do the work necessary to find answers. But, if you go through this book, chapter by chapter, you will learn more about yourself than you ever imagined...and only then can you be sure that you are connecting with the right career. This book is not for those who prefer to blame others for their lack of initiative. It will really move you forward. 2 of 2 people found the following review helpful. Good basic book By JMSI was looking for a non-text book for a college class I am teaching at a community college on Career Development. Good, basic book, some good assessments. I am pairing it with "The Everything Career Tests" Book.

Updated with the latest research, this guide is essential for people who are in the process of choosing a career and finding a job. By teaching how to better understand ones interests, aptitudes, personality, and goals, practical tips are provided on how to find a job in a chosen field where to search for available jobs, the best ways to prepare a resume, how to write a cover letter, and how to make the best impression during a job interview. Filled with personal stories of people who have found work they love despite potentially overwhelming challenges, this book is a road map to finding the perfect career.

Provides readers a concise, accessible guide to help them navigate their way through a highly complex process Rhonda Brown, MEd, LPC, president, Michigan Career Development Association and Chairperson
